

CALL FOR PAPERS FOR GJSD

ISSN 2732-3781

Submission open

The GiLE Journal of Skills Development (GJSD) invites authors to submit research articles for its 2nd issue. The GJSD (gjsd.gile-edu.org) is an open-access, peer-reviewed, international scientific journal on soft skills development for the Digital Age in the 21st Century, published by the GiLE Foundation (www.gile-edu.org) and indexed by CrossRef and Google Scholar (online ISSN 2732-3781, DOI prefix 10.52398).

No submission fee is required, and all articles are available free-of-charge upon online publication on the GJSD website.

This open-access journal is focussed on primary and secondary research in competence (skills) development. It publishes research on 21st Century skills and it emphasises the need for substantial training in this regard across the entire education system and at all levels. This includes interpersonal skills, soft skills, digital skills, media literacy skills and other transferrable skills, adaptability and change management, emotional intelligence, empathy, innovation and creativity skills, complex problem-solving skills, communication skills, stress and anxiety management, leadership skills and effective decision making. The GJSD accepts research articles, research reports, literature reviews, and book reviews.

For submission, please familiarise yourself with the Journal's Aims & Scope and the Guide for Authors, and submit your research paper through the website platform at gjsd.gile-edu.org.

Submission deadline: 30 August 2021

Acceptance Notification: approximately 2 months from submission deadline
